

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a method for providing multimedia messages to a receiver mobile terminal, which 5 multimedia messages are generated out of an original text message sent by the service user. According to the present invention, the method for providing multimedia messages is advantageous in that, by providing a new multimedia message that is generated by combining user's original text message
10 and the prepared multimedia data or the prepared text data, the mobile message service may enable various representations in messages, and further enables more enhanced type of business.